Actually, listening to your conversation with Woody sounds the most amusing.

In our conversation? Short to 114 and stop loss at 10%? Other than that? ;-)

Actually, Reid was kind of confused about the "let the weak die" thing that you talked about and I explained to him that in evolutionary systems, you have to have something that eliminates the weak - that that was the role of predators. I explained that your position on that came from evolution and that I have become convinced this is true. This was disruptive to his thinking but he understood. We are going to talk more about it later. I think this will be a key point for him.

Also, I know you've talked about it before, but the idea that spending more than 200M is very hard, was interesting - especially when I really started thinking about it.

I'm going to do MITCOIN.

I'm checking with MIT about how to set up a slush fund. Can we talk about it sometime? What you want the parameters to be on how it gets spent and approximately how big it should be?

Have fun on Treasure Island.
