Jeffrey,
Heli update:

<=iv>Progress is terrible, during today's visit to heli, I was informed by David Burch the manager, his best Lead Mechanic Andy Phillips quit a week before my arrival. (I was not informed of this), Andy was the main reason I take the heli there. Second Mechanic, Ken who took over Andy's position (his father-in-law committed suicide last week) so he's gone. I told Burch this isn't my problem and shouldn't effect Bell's delivery performance and he better get support from Bell in Bristol TN.

Since I arrived 6pm on April 23rd, they first started on Thursday 24th, so they are 8 days into the inspection at this time. I told Burch I need to be airborne / completed by May 14th, so I could be ready for your 17th departure. I was told an estimate 14 day down time barring no major findings.,</=iv>

- this will be my last visit to Lauderdale for annual inspection unless they hire more qualified people.

I'll keep you advised.

Thx
Larry
