In what way are you concerned. If you have constructive criticism for me it would be very helpful to me.

Every day I am either looking for fabrics for island/carpets/talking with kitchen people/ looking for Bali furniture. I know none of these have been completed but, the process takes time and you are in town very seldom at the moment which is the only time i can show you things. When I don't get approval from you on things , we wait

I didn't think I could go ahead with for example fabric for a bag, color for t-shirts that you have not approved.

I also am the go to person for anything to do with apartments guests, cleaning, buying food where necessary, checking on them, the doormen come to me if there is anything going on with them . All these little things take time. Fixing the printer for eg took my majority of a day, I didn't phone scott because last time when neither he nor epson could help me I managed to fix it on my own. The time I took in doing Mort's frame like I did, takes a lot of time, hours!! I don't want work for you or anything that reflects on you to be done in a sloppy manner. You gave me the option of doing it 8 x 10, but I set my mind on doing whatever it took to have it done to your first preference. very large.

When you are in town, there is work to be done at the house, answering door, doing food, packing for trips etc.

Perhaps I take too much time on each task, and think about it too much, could be faster in making decisions. I am not sure. What I am sure is it is not from a lack of effort or my heart being in my work.

I also take time for yoga and myself fairly regularly. I am doing yoga every second day, and trying to get to the pool every 2nd day as well
