WALLACE SHAWN-ANDRÉ GREGORY PROJECT
This August at Joe's Pub at The Public Theater Saturday, August 3 at 7pm

VANYA ON 42ND ST

Over the course of three years, director André Gregory and a group of actors came together on a voluntary basis in order to better understand Chekhov's work through performance workshops. Staged and filmed entirely within the vacant shell of the then-abandoned New Amsterdam Theater on 42nd Street, once the home of the Ziegfeld Follies, they enacted the play rehearsal style on a bare stage with the actors in street clothes. The first 45 minutes seem to be a documentary of a rehearsal, and without the audience noticing, it transforms into a filmed version of the play
