
From:

Sent:

To:

[REDACTED]
Thursday, April 18, 2013 3:42 PM
Jeffrey Epstein

I would love some advice on the psychiatrists.

I have one more of Evas recommendations I can see. (The first one was the one I saw, another specializes in couples therapy) This one can see me next Wednesday. His name is Jonathan Silver. The problem is he is $700 for the first session which is an hour and a half.

Dr Romoff recommended a woman (Edith Rubenstein) to me he says she feels has a gift with assessing and being able to find the best solution regarding medication. I saw her but was not convinced as she seems very conservative. She wants to see me again to finish getting an idea for the medical side of things but also recommended psychotherapy. Medical wise she seems to think it would be switching from cymbalta to another drug which she wants to have another consultation for to assess what will be best.

What should I do?