Dear Jeffrey ,

We have reached a milestone: this Sunday, The New York Times announced our Inaugural Season in its print edition, and we are sharing this first news on the press with you (see below).

Or you can click through directly to The New York Times Website.

We are so grateful to you for your support and good wishes that have made our new home, and our exciting inaugural season in the Dumbo Brooklyn Cultural District, a reality.

Best wishes,

James Lynes
Capital Campaign Director

Theater for a New Audience Sets Full Season at New Home

By ADAM M. KEPLER

Theater for a New Audience has announced the full schedule for the inaugural season at its new home, the Center for Shakespeare and Classical Drama, in Brooklyn. As previously reported, Julie Taymor will make her return to the New York stage for the first time since "Spider-Man: Turn Off the Dark" to direct Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," with music by Elliot Goldenthal. Previews are set to begin on Oct. 19 with opening night scheduled for Nov. 2.

A production of "King Lear" is to follow, directed by Arin Arbus, with the British actor Michael Pennington ("Love Is My Sin") in the title role. Previews for "Lear" are scheduled to begin on March 14. And Michael Shannon ("Mistakes Were Made," "Grace") will star in "The Killer," by Eugène Ionesco and directed by Darko Tresnjak, for the season's final play, with previews set to start May 17.

A version of this article appeared in print on 07/29/2013, on page C3 of the New York edition with the headline: 2 More Plays Added For a Troupe's New Home.
