Jeffrey:

I have not heard from you recently so I thought I would send you a quick follow up note as we are approaching the end for the year.

Now that the election is over, I am happy to sit down with you and go over what I believe are the next steps that you need to undertake for yourself personally on the PR front. I do believe that there are a number of things that should be done (albeit they need to be done strategically and phased in appropriately). I have put together a plan to do so but would need to sit down face to face with you to go over these steps and have a bit of a Q&A back and forth with you

If however, you do not wish to proceed that is fine by me as well, just let Cecile know and we will consider this business relationship a wrap at this point and I wish you well

Hope you have a Happy Holiday </:p>

McGee
