
From: Barnaby Marsh [REDACTED] I
Sent: Sunday, December 12, 2010 9:31 PM
To: Jeevacation
Subject: stupid risk (and cold)

Dear Jeffrey-

Sitting here in Pheonix and coming increasingly under =he weather- as of last night, sore throat, and losing voice (dinner last n=ght was torture); it has not gone away today, - have been forced to be si=ting here quietly all day. I'm never sick, so this bug must be strong =one other person here is hoarse, so it might be going around).

While the sunshine at your ranch might help, more importantly, in the b=tter interest of your health I should probably wait until this passes befo=e seeing you (not the kind of risk that is good to take - losing one's=voice is not at all fun). This has not been a good week for us, which I ha=e been looking forward to (and it is my fault), which I feel badly about. =br> Alas, I will let the ticket I bought for tonight go unused, and will se= you in NYC or elsewhere at the next chance...

Barnaby

<=r>

--000e0cd241eeab8c2704973d4e66-- date-last-viewed 0 date-received 1292189475 flags 8606972929 gmail-label-ids 22 remote-id 122360