I understand. And they probably need to have an open place to be able to hire. I'm patient, I'm here. I'll apply for some other jobs, so like this I can get used with the idea of an interview, and that I'll be able to keep my emotions out. I don't want to blush, or lose my voice during the interview...

no, i think your chances are veryvery good. but it takes time. its very rare for someone , to hire immediately, they have to have two or three interviews ,with more than one person. thats why i keep stressing now now now

I'm not home. I have a meeting. I'm looking for a place to stay after my bf leaves... I'm aware of what I have to do as [REDACTED], I'm very sure that at begining would be very difficult, but after few months it will become easier...but then who has time to wait for me!? I saw an [REDACTED]..but then I'll need money to pay the rent. Shall I stop thinking that I have a chance with [REDACTED]?

I know, I rember telling you about how school grades are not important , it is experience. I offered the opportunity for you to learn from [REDACTED], while i had my office here. you chose you have more photos. realistically [REDACTED] will require two to three meetings. and you should expect at least a month of no answer. can you skype?

Yesterday I looked on a website with job proposals, and all the decent jobs they were requiring for experience at least 1 year... I'm counting on the fact that I know [REDACTED] but mother tongue is not important at all, so it doesn't count...
