I've received a phone call today from the Marketing director from Findus, telling me that he's going for a meeting next week in France and he told me is better to go to work starting on next monday the 19th of july. I've told him is ok for me. So... since I'm still homeless in London that gives me one more week to find a nice place there... I'll remain home for few more days...I didn't get the chance to do much actually this week. Time flies so fast when you are busy all the time.

Did you got any positive feedbacks about any place in London for me to rent?

I've discussed also the salary today, and it will be 25.000 £ a year.... wich is gross. I guess with tax and everything will come to 2000£ per month... wich is perfect for me I believe.
What do you think?

Still proud of me? :)
