i am well aware of what i said,, and you otherwise show your appreciation by what?, doing what.? i have asked what you actually do, but you think that question is out of bounds. half the time , you are in a funky mood because you want to complain about someone or something, you sit during medicine and say and do nothing, you get upset when i say i am bored. and continue on the same exact negative track. I have asked you to ask [REDACTED] to help you understand, that doing very little and expecting very much is not reality. I am not a maid ,, sums it up.

You asked me a very specific question- 'When did you say thank you?' not 'Do you appreciate what I provide for you?'
I say thank you when you do something nice - like leaning over to kiss me, the little gap shoes, flying, classics- And every day I appreciate you providing a comfortable life for me..
