hi jeffrey,

...you chose the color blue for the cabana no 1.. you said blue somehow like the sky color, and for the bathroom no 1 use the same pattern i did the sample(with rombs) but use a stronger blue than the blue i used in the sample on the wall.

then for cabana no 2 and 3 you said in one bathroom lavender - lilac and the room white with horizontal lavender lines (like pinto..) and the other one similar but use green instead. this is what i remember. i dont think you chose blue for cabana no 1 and then again blue for the cabana 2 or 3.

anyway, i think we should wait with the green untill you come here and see, and then decide, eventually change the color if you dont like it. it would take me one day for the room and one day for the bathroom because the preparations are done now.

i didnt see the picture emad took, but maybe the green in the bathroom looks diferent in the picture. in real it is an optimistic green..it makes the bathroom happy. you will see..

and somehow in the bathrooms, because the walls are close to each other they reflect the color, and then a color gets much more intens than it is in real. thats why in the bathroom in cabana no 2 which is somehow lilac-blue now, i used at the begining like lavender..lilac, but it didnt look good... when i put the color on the wall it looks intens..it was tiring..even when i did the sample on the paper it looked good..it was light. so then i added a little more blue to turn it more towards blue..

anyway its very confusing with the colors i think because of the light from outside. in th emorning its one color at lunch time its different, at afternoon different, then if its cloudy its diferent too.. you will see.

beside this, can we start with the white venetian plaster in the master bedroom? one person can come sunday and start monday. then later like thursday i can jump in there too and we might be able to finish it before christmas.

thank you,
ion

No.. I told him last time I was there you didn't want green; that we had only decided on the blue and lavender. [REDACTED] told me last time you were there you had decided on red/cranberry for the last room.
