>>feeling better?

Good days, bad days and it's mainly about sleep. The frozen shoulder syndrome, for some reason kicks in at night when I'm asleep. Have to get up and either use ice or heat. Otherwise, functional.

The good news is that JJ came up with a book proposal last week and I am auctioning it next Tuesday. Lots of interest.
Here it is (confidential, please:

The bad news is that absent an intervention, she departs for Western Canada in a few days. "It's soul crushing", she writes. So here's the question, in the following message, is she talking an0out JE or JB?? She is also interested in the possibility of going to Princeton which would require a grant to pay her way at the Princeton Center for Human Values. Although she's fearless on matters intellectual, I imagine she's too shy to ask you directly, so I will).

JohnnyB!

The Jewish lawyer is a thing of the past. There is only room for one Jew in my life at a time (minus Jaron, who might never fit*).

Would it be too ironic to ask JE to donate to the Princeton Center for Human Values? I think I could carry out what I want to do there and be close to everything...

Yes, of course, to dinner. I await instructions.

Until Tuesday,

JJ.
