yes to all your questions. Its a story of false allegations in a world that rushes to judgment, is afraid of questioning the "victim" (the ny feminazis, who even after reading that the woman admitted to lying about her past rapes , and who explained her crying during the first re-telling of the story, that she listened to a tape , prepared by a man , who taught her to cry and pause at the right places. (her asylum hearing). still maintained that this means nothing, "don;t forget that even liars can also be raped by powerful men',
