May be because I grew up being kind of a stubbornness child and may be my parents gave me too much freedom, I always did things on my way, almost never listen to my parents . But when was time to grow up I still acted as a child all this time , continued to do things by my way arguing w you and making mistakes ... But now through all this errors and regards to you I feel that I'm start growing , developing, yes still being a stubbornness sometimes, however I really want to success in a life I want you be proud of me and your opinion is always an important and value to me and you know how big meaning you have in my life being as a first man in my life, parent and family ... By living with this woman I wanted to become a real adult , leaving in inconvenient places makes me seek for work harder for having a something better and do not loosing my goal and also the woman work mostly online at home it would be helpful to speak to her and improve my English as well.

I hope you not gave up on me and still believe that I'm growing and becoming a man of worthy...
