I thought we should prepare a doc to leave him with after the meeting. so there can be no misunderstanding. imagine that he would tell anyone currently working at microsoft, that he is going to cap the upside of their options. and if they really do well cut their salary. ... this was designed so that you couldn't leave. It is a positive thing, he is terrified that if you make money you will be too independent. that is why, the loan up front, and a pay back period and method of doing so should be considered. it locks you in to him and at the same time provides you security.
