As part of a marketing course, I was assigned to a team whose members were sort of a mixed salad. The Frenchman, French, and some of the greens, dedicated, however some felt they should have been a main dish, I wish I had not chosen to ignore, their differences as I was too focused on the result. I did not take the time to savor each member before barreling ahead to the task presented.. Instead of taking the time to determine a proper dressing to help alleviate the problem, I decided to begin the project by myself. It turned out to be a difficult semester,.
