Once upon a time, back in the 1950s, a bunch of Scandinavian designers got together. They started talking.

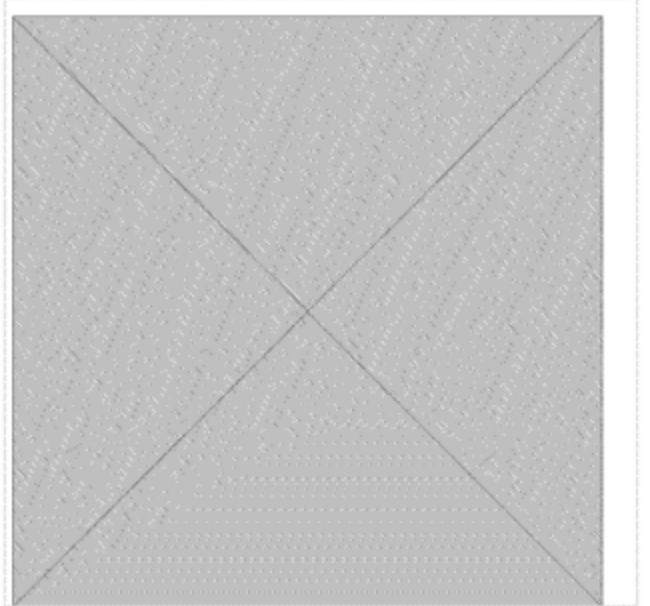

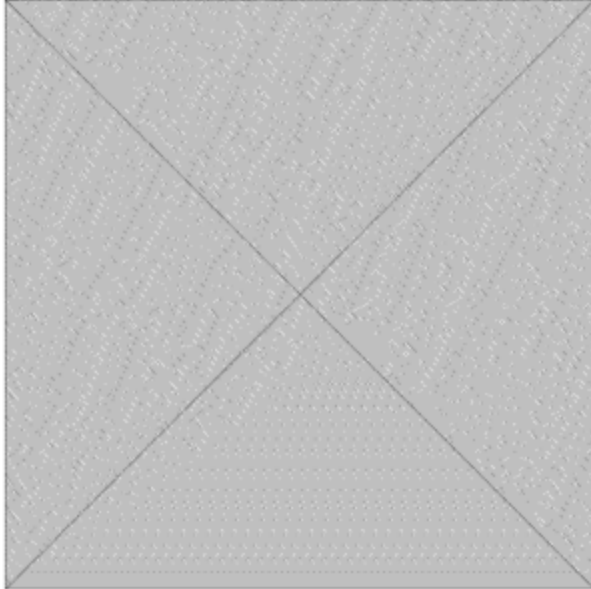

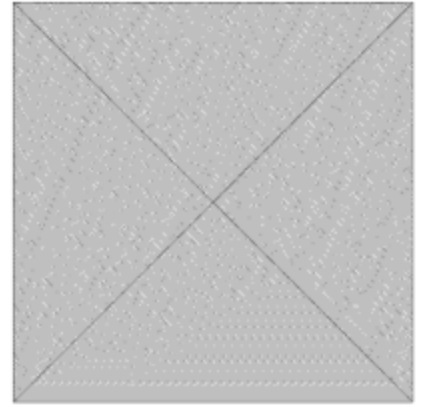

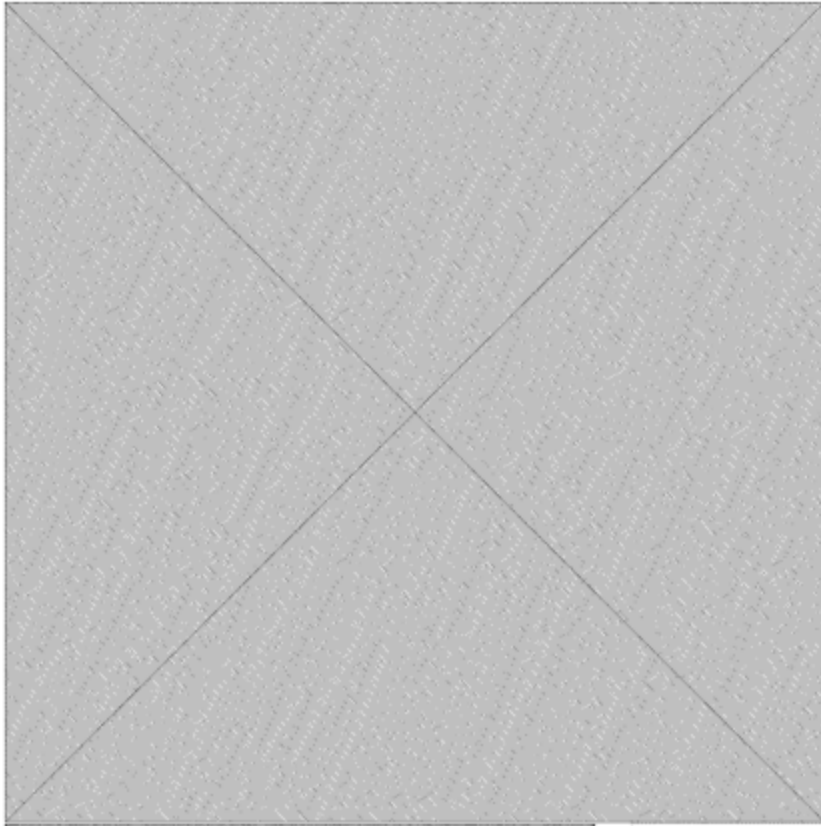

First, they talked about the weather. Allegedly, it was cold. But then they got to the good stuff. What if, they wondered, everyday objects could be beautiful? And even more, what if they didn't have to cost a lot? They imagined their friends' houses filled with sleek, minimalist, accessible designs. Then they got to work, bringing their vision to life, one chair or throw pillow at a time.

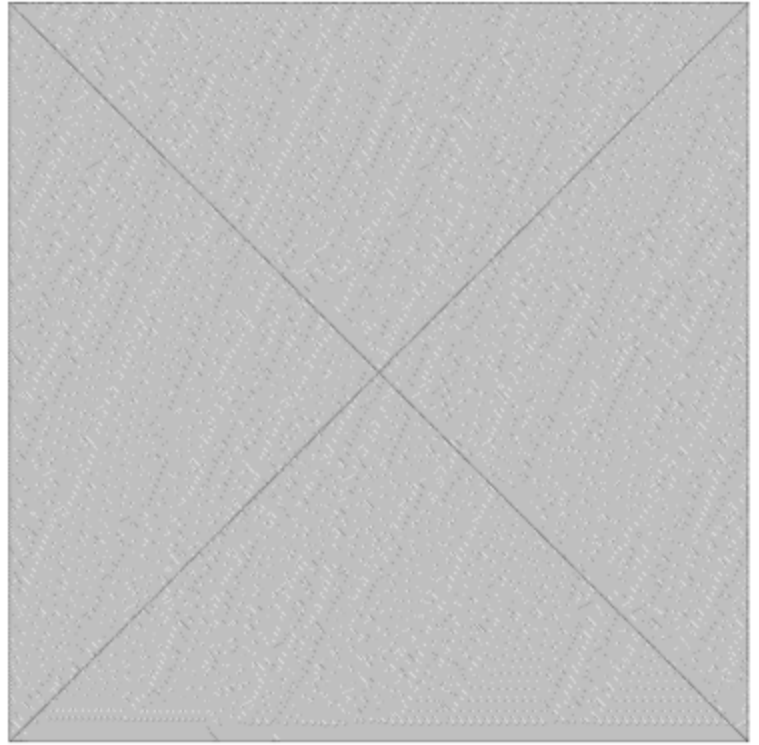

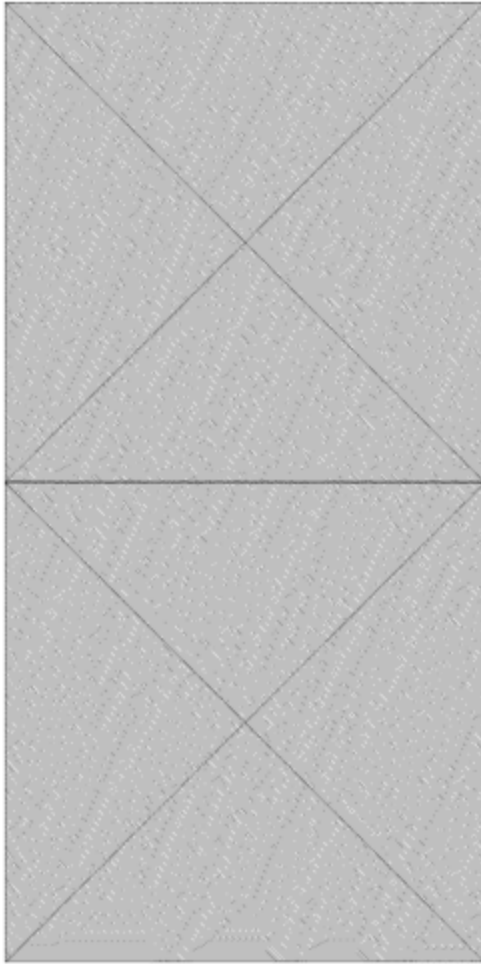

Okay, maybe that's not exactly how it happened, but the end result holds true. Today, Scandinavian design is everywhere. Stylish, modern furniture and décor is sprucing up homes large and small. And for that, we are very grateful.
