Hefty black iron, distressed wood, rugged style: what's the secret to making the industrial look work? It's all about finding new ways to use tough-as-nails old materials. Iron pipes become the frame for a table or a set of shelves; torn-out barn wood is repurposed into a tabletop or bench.

Factory wheels and gears find new life inside a rolling bar cart. Scrap metal becomes decorative pieces, heavy with rustic, vintage charm. Throw in modern updates like gleaming glass panels and trendy studded chairs, and remember that a mix of textures makes the room really pop. You can style it; we'll show you the way.
