Hi [REDACTED]

Thanks for forwarding this information. I can confirm that both of these ESL courses are indeed 0 credits so they will not help you with regard to making progress toward your degree. The course I mentioned in my previous message today is a 3-credit option.

Given that you tested into ESL 6 which is the highest level of ESL, my feeling is that you could probably handle the 3 credit option I recommended. However, I certainly understand if you would prefer to try the ESL courses instead.

In terms of cost, the 3 credit course I referenced would be approximately $4185. The ESL courses are less expensive ($1190 each) since you would not be earning credits. Those two courses combined would be approximately $2380.

Best,
Dechen

If you are interested in taking a Global Studies course this summer, I would recommend you consult the listings at <http://nsglobal.info/summer-2014-courses>

It would be wise to avoid 5000 level courses at this time however there are some good 3000 level courses that might be of
