

To: Michael Faber[REDACTED]
From: Michael Faber
Sent: Fri 12/20/2013 5:18:43 PM
Subject: Oprah, Katie and Nick Kristof All Agree

To our friends,

They've been praised by Oprah, featured guests with Katie, and were just recommended two weeks ago by Nick Kristof in The New York Times. See: http://www.nytimes.com/2013/12/01/opinion/sunday/kristof-gifts-that-reflect-the-spirit-of-the-season.html?_r=0.

So, especially this time of year, as we reach out to support those in need, both locally and globally, please take a moment to visit Global Goods Partners, www.globalgoodspartners.org, an innovative 501c3 non-profit organization focusing on raising incomes in more than 20 countries.

They help women-led "micro-enterprises" in Asia, Africa and the Americas to grow their businesses and become self-sustaining. They have created new markets for the crafts and designs of these groups and return 100% of the profits to the those in need. They import these products directly (and eliminate the middleman) so all the funds can be used locally for food, clothing, education, pre-natal care, and healthcare. Global Good Partners also partners with schools across the country to raise funds and, with extensive teaching materials, to teach children about the critically important issues of global poverty.

I have pledged to raise them $100,000 and need your help!

Please visit www.globalgoodspartners.org and (1) DONATE and/or (2) SHOP FOR CHANGE. The website is full of excellent gifts for friends, family and colleagues for the holiday season. All donations are tax-deductible.

Happy holidays to you.

Warm regards,

PLEASE SUPPORT www.globalgoodspartners.org

Best regards,

Michael

Michael Faber

