he is away on vacation with her, they will be negotiating every day of that trip, the best for you would be for him to grow some balls and tell her if she wants a divorce she should file she won't. I agree, no need to send this today, I am very disappointed by his first offer, instead of saying I will do whatever it takes, like the apt he cheaped out. DO NOT negotiate or offer suggestions on what (khsola or anything tomorrow), you will be limiting your future, if anything you should only say you are hopeful that she will change her mind, NOTHING else. I know you want certainty, but this will take time, I hope she changes her mind, I have done nothing wrong, over and over,

this is great.
My only worry is whether I should send him now or tell him when I see him on Monday.

He is still trying to make it work with Melinda. He is having next round of negotiation with her next weekend.

If all fails - then it is a negotiation for a next steps.

If I send it right now it reads that I accepted that it is all over.
Finally I can't put some things such as divorce in a email. If she reads, she will go extra steps to be as nasty as possible.

Also I think that my chances of convincing him to talk to you are higher if I do it in person and not over the email.

So how about to hold this for 8 days?

THANK YOU

to me

Bill,

I am in tears as i write this, and have barely slept for three days. I am devastated beyond words. I find myself losing my best friend , and my career ,all in one day and by no fault of my own. As your friend , I suggest you carefully reconsider your alternatives. If Melinda decides to file for divorce I will of course stand by you and help any way I can.

I want to see you happy, truly. Difficult choices , no matter what.

As you know I am going in for delicate surgery on my eyes on Tuesday. . This timing could not be worse. I will be totally out of it, for a few days. I hope you are able to convince Melinda to allow me to continue doing my job, a job you described as I could not have done better. I hoped to ask her face to face to change her mind. I have done nothing wrong.

However,

I recognize the fact that it might not be possible at this time . I also realize I will need a lawyer to review any agreement we might enter into, but I don't trust any , with so much sensitive info. I have asked Jeffrey to oversee and negotiate for me , and have given him power of attorney to act on my behalf . He also needed to be my health proxy during my operation.

I have informed him of all the details surrounding our dilemma. I trust him 100%. My communication with him is privileged , no worry . He has agreed to act as my financial and legal representative. You can trust him. . He has dealt with very similar problems in the past. Obviously he hasn't given me the details.

I would greatly appreciate you and he talking directly. He does not know Larry , and cannot be open with him. He doesn't like or trust pr people.

This is a terrible circumstance in which we find ourselves ,but I am confident of our friendship and I know you know how devoted I am to you .
