Your people booked rooms for Nathan, etc., and he has really tried hard to fit it within his schedule, but it doesn't like he will be able to break free. Would you object to my replacing him with my good friend John Conway, who is a professor of mathematics at Princeton, super fun, and definitely one of the best mathematicians on this planet. Fun and brilliant.

I won't ask him if you want to close it down at present attendance, but he would definitely be able to add.
