The Red Crown of Thorns were Infested with white Aphids, and they got out of control.
We sprayed them with some Chemicals that apparently had spoiled, and they burnt up the already delicate plants.

That area is now Aphid free, but the plants suffered greatly due to the spoiled chemical.

The Italian lady has been off island, but emailed me over the weekend saying, this week Thursday, or some time next week would be a goo time for us to move the plants.
She also will come to LSJ to give some Suggestions.
