If you are hesitating about doing a million into seed and having rich have to manage the investment etc, do this instead: invest $250K in Innovium (you'll sit alongside francesca von habsburg). It's public, not widely traded but still public -- which might be additionally interesting for you. Neil will leverage that with his other funders and put 400-500K into Seed. And then we'll be fine because other smaller investors will participate and we can cut some additional costs. OK?
