

To: jeevacation@gmail.com[jeevacation@gmail.com]; Jeffrey Epstein[jeevacation@gmail.com]
From: [REDACTED]
Sent: Fri 8/31/2012 2:22:56 PM
Subject: Fwd: Shoes

She is referring to the time between giving concierge our bags and them bringing them up to the room.

----- Forwarded message -----

From: <[REDACTED]>
Date: Fri, Aug 31, 2012 at 10:10 AM
Subject: Re: Shoes
To: [REDACTED]>

Trying to call him now, will try again. I was 90% sure they were lost during the trip when our bags were left outside in the hall - I did not see them in my apt when I was packing. I suggested they could be stolen in bahamas because we were both missing certain things. I never wore the new shoes and can return them! I will talk to him as soon as he calls me back.

Sent via BlackBerry from T-Mobile

From: [REDACTED]>
Date: Fri, 31 Aug 2012 09:19:37 -0400
To: [REDACTED]>
Subject: Re: Shoes

You told him they were stolen in the Bahamas, when in reality, they never left your apartment. I would email him immediately. You did not tell him they could not be found, you told him the people in the Bahamas took them. He is not going to be happy.

On Fri, Aug 31, 2012 at 3:10 AM, [REDACTED] wrote:

Wow, they were on the open shelfe all the time?! Thank you so much! I ve searched my apt upside down trying to find them, probably after I took my luggage bags leaving to moscow is was easier to see them. I was getting crazy looking all over in the apt and in the house, even looked through my other luggage bags. That's really strange that all the time they were in an open place.

Of course - I will tell him first thing when I see him - I m leaving at 6am to LSJ this Sunday). Or you think I d better email him or call him now?

Leaving back to NY tmw morning, see you soon!!!! Kiss
Sent via BlackBerry from T-Mobile

From: [REDACTED]>
Date: Thu, 30 Aug 2012 15:57:35 -0400

To: [REDACTED] >
Subject: Shoes

When I went into your apartment to get the passport I went into the kitchen and saw the shoes you said were lost (Louboutins, patent black with open toe) in the open shelves right next to the kitchen entrance. I feel you should tell Jeffrey right away