yes but the columns need to fit on the building.. I think they should not be the same they should look fat at the bottom, with a break at top

yes, of course with the details of the columns.. and maybe the columns skinnier to look like the real building (attached image) the pictures i sent you i did them simpler just to get the idea how the buildings should look.
but which one of the images i sent you? with the roof too?

no camouflage, I think the columns need details. the interior of the columns and the exterior different,, it should look real as seen from the ocean

hi again,
so now regarding to the concrete buildings.. you gave me an image (attachment "a")..so i did a few things in computer using that image.
please check attachments and let me know what do you think about them.. at one building the wall is pretty flat but the other building has a lot of pipes...and it is smaller..its not that high..
....or another idea..we could camouflage them..using like three types of greens and maybe plant some trees in front of them.. i dont know..i was just thinking.
thank you,
ion
