Recommended Watchlist: Visionary Directors

In this week's Recommended Watchlist, we showcase legendary directors whose movies explore subjects, develop striking visuals or stretch the boundaries of storytelling. From Robert Altman's Interiors and John Cassavetes' Husbands to Robert Rodriguez's El Mariachi and Woody Allen's Manhattan Mystery, this week we've got them all.

Pull up your director's chair and settle in for some genius.

Robert Altman puts his unique stamp on one of the greatest movies about degenerate gamblers.

Rated R

Peter Bogdanovich's breakthrough film ushered stark realism into Hollywood and introduced Jeff Bridges to the world.

Rated R

Woody Allen re-teams with silver-screen soulmate Diane Keaton in a Hitchcockian whodunit overflowing with one-liners.

Rated PG

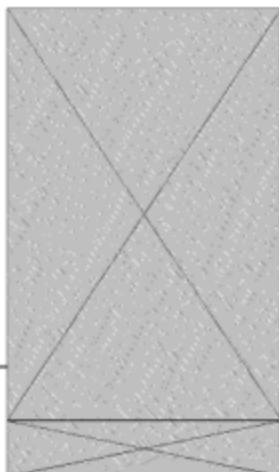

One of the toughest and best boxing movies ever made...and that is saying something.

Rated PG

Director Todd Solondz proves he's the master of so-wrong-it's-right in the Wiener Dog movie that put him on the map.

Rated R

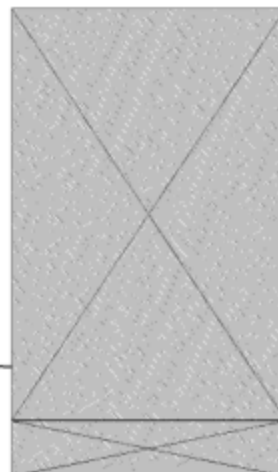

A hyper-violent, shoestring budgeted Sundance winner that reinvented the crime genre and helped indie films go legit.

Rated R

Nicole Kidman (in her coolest role) anchors a gifted cast in this biting, media crucifying Gus Van Sant-directed satire.

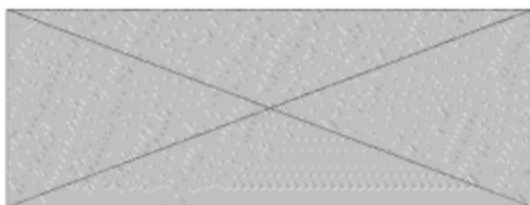

Rated R

One of pioneering American auteur John Cassavetes' essential films is a bold and ballsy slice of proto-Indie cinema.
