

J.P. Morgan cordially invites you to a special presentation

J.P. Morgan Global Access Private Investments Vintage 2013 ("Vintage 2013")

As clients continue to seek smart ways to potentially enhance returns and manage risk in their portfolios, private equity can be a long-term complement to a traditional public equity allocation. Private equity managers often take a controlling interest in an entity, providing them with the flexibility to improve operations, adjust capital structure and develop new products, while being insulated from concerns around quarterly earnings.

This flexibility gives private equity the potential to outperform public equity over time¹. At J.P. Morgan, we strive to select private equity managers that we believe can provide enough outperformance to compensate clients for having a longer term investment horizon. When searching for compelling investment opportunities, expanding the universe to include non-public companies may make private equity an attractive choice for many clients.

J.P. Morgan Global Access Private Investments Vintage 2013 ("Vintage 2013" or the "Fund") will combine approximately 8-12 of J.P. Morgan Private Bank's private equity, private lending, and real estate investment fund offerings into a single vehicle². The Vintage program was launched in 2011, and over the past two years has been successful in allocating to a diversified set of private equity managers. Similarly, the Fund will provide clients with diversification across geography, sector, and capital structure, and will leverage the world-class manager selection and due diligence of J.P. Morgan's Private Bank. With approximately 85 funds representing $30 billion in commitments since 2000, J.P. Morgan Private Bank is positioned to offer its best thinking in a single fund exclusively for its clients³.
