dear jeffrey
hope all is well with you. still in france?
a question: : do you ever function as an angel investor or VC? i am involved in an exciting start up with Wolfram research (stephen wolfram) and the large marketing firm BBH. I am the scientist on the team and have created a suite of applications that build from scientific discoveries on dogs and other animals to create tools that will influence pet welfare by means of cognitive enrichment. the technology is very cool, and wolfram is heavily behind it. we are now contacting investors to raise funds. any interest? do you know anyone who might? the pet product industry is recession proof (it actually has been increasing a lot in the last few years), is a billion dollar industry, and there is no one in the space that unites science and technology.

best,

marc
