The Urgency of Planetary Clearing

“A civilization without insanity, without criminals and without war, where the able can prosper and honest beings can have rights, and where man is free to rise to greater heights, are the aims of Scientology.” — LRH

It is time to get busy. Very busy. Every Scientologist. Everywhere.

The terrorist attacks of this day demonstrate the destruction a small minority of suppressive persons can wreak. If nothing else, it also demonstrates why our mission is so vital and why speed in accomplishing our aims is of paramount importance.

Bluntly, we are the only people of Earth who can reverse the decline, and we do not have an endless amount of time to pull it off. Every sector of Scientology activity plays a vital role that must be fulfilled.

No matter what forceful retaliation is exacted against the culprits, it will not make a world at peace or without war.

Countless wars have proven that.

As long as men have reactive minds, rationality across the dynamics is not possible.

World War II and its mission of genocide was spurred on by a psychiatric myth of racial superiority. Reducing Hitler's army to dust, killing millions in the process, did not end it.

Suicide bombings at Pearl Harbor led to atomic bombs wiping out whole cities. Yet suicide bombings of an even more brutal nature—previously unimaginable—have now occurred.

Every one of these attacks, and endless world conflicts can be traced to a lack of real technology of the mind and reliance on false mental therapies of psychiatry and psychology. Don't be fooled. It is not normal for people to agree to suicide missions in killing others. Such people are not born, they are made. It is done through drugging, hypnotism and implanting—the stock in trade of the psych. This is not conjecture. It is fact. And if there is any doubt, consider the fact that the primary suspect—Osama bin Laden—has a psychiatrist as his right-hand man.

While we will continue to fight psychiatric influence and brutality until those plagues are a forgotten memory, that is only one step in achieving our primary mission for each and every being, as reflected in The Bridge to Total Freedom. There is no shortcut, no “one-shot” handling.

We have the technology to pull it off. But if we don't work faster we could face a scenario where any help would be impossible. And it's not just the violence we have recently witnessed; it's everything that violence potentially wreaks in terms of economic and social collapse, not to mention the pervasive apathy which terrorism seeks to instill, leaving a population that can only think of death. We are the only ones who can change that tone, so vital to conquering evil.

This is not a new phenomena. These factors have existed in society throughout our 51 years.

At times, they are hidden by the social veneer of materialism—nifty cars, fancy houses and an economic “boom” that only existed on paper with the latest dot.com worth billions one day and not one cent the next. Look even deeper and you find mankind's “humanitarian” objectives heading in the direction of MEST and “artificial intelligence,” all towards denial of the spirit. Instead of man, computers are the supposed salvation, evidenced by what comprises the world's largest industry, generating billions for its owners. And what has this ignorance of the spirit and reliance on MEST wrought? Computers, heralded as “amazing,” but only capable of popping up an address book, phone number, mail order catalog, or the newest pornographic site to restimulate and fixate the attention of users. But they can't yet help one human being, just as all the most “high technology” of the world couldn't prevent a psychotic killing thousands by striking at the heart of what symbolizes the world's superpower.

Book One was written in the aftermath of a World War and the threshold of the Cold War. It is as true today as then. That book was more than an assault on the reactive mind. It was a plea for people to get on board and apply its revelations as the only solution to war and destruction. Read the opening and closing chapters again.

The Cold War ended and the Berlin Wall came down. Old political enemies of 1950 are allies today. But just as Dianetics predicted, unless we attack the natural enemy of Man—the reactive mind—Man will always be faced with turmoil, danger and death:

“A science of mind is a goal which has engrossed thousands of generations of man. Armies, dynasties and whole civilizations have perished for the lack of it. Rome went to dust for the want of it. China swims in blood for the need of it. And down in the arsenal is an atom bomb, its hopeful nose full-armed in ignorance of it.”

—LRH (DMSMH)

We have the technology and organization to overcome any obstacle facing this planet today.

The greater threat of the atomic bomb was not its destructive power; it was the hysteria and apathy it could inflict on whole populations—precisely what terrorism is accomplishing today. LRH solved that with group processing—specifically providing the technology to help the masses in unfortunate times like these.

Likewise, we have the means to reverse the cycle of materialism so that “all is MEST” and one “only lives once” is no longer the mantra of modern society. That's where the nation of America stood on September 11th, 2001—where happiness was defined by the buck, and if that didn't bring happiness (and it never has), then just take a mood-altering pill. Only when a society has lost its spiritual values, or relegated them to a passing thought (to cover all bases “just in case there is an afterlife”), can a scene deteriorate in a flash—as it just has. The public knows other religions have failed. Every one of them had an original goal of peace, love and compassion. And yet, one by one, they became involved in war themselves—all because they lacked the technology to achieve their aims—Christianity, Islam, Judaism—you name it. All except us. So we must give them the tech too. We must have as many Volunteer Ministers as there are police—getting every being back to church, but this time for the real help we can provide, which we must spread far and wide and so unite all religions.

And all while we work to reform the field of mental health and return the word psyche to its real meaning—the spirit.

But never forget, the only permanent solution lies with moving every being up The Bridge. Only the Clear and OT will survive. Not just in this civilization, but into eternity.

Across the nation and world, people are saying we must turn this tragedy to good and emerge stronger and better than before. But not one of them can say how. You can. You can do something about it. As Scientologists armed with the technology, you have the power.

So this is a wake-up call for every Scientologist. Not one can afford to turn a blind eye to what has just happened. Too much depends on what we can and must accomplish.

I believe you already know that. Indeed, our orgs have been flooded with calls asking, “What should we do?”

---

The answer is twofold:

1) Get up The Bridge.

Right now, you are the lucky ones. You know the road out. As LRH urged, don't waste this brief breath in eternity. Take advantage of the opportunity we still have—an opportunity which will only continue to exist as long as many travel The Bridge. With recent events, I need not further explain that to you.

It does matter that you take a course. Putting it off until later, or fitting it in two hours a week, in between other "interesting" activities, will not do. Your future as a being is at stake. So is the future of those you love and the world at large.

It does matter that you avail yourself of auditing and move personally up The Bridge. Again, it is your eternity. But it also helps all dynamics with one more Clear or OT as a stable datum, bringing that much more sanity to this planet.

However, as you probably expect, this message is a request for much, much more. In fact, it is an appeal for unprecedented help. Which brings us to the most important thing you can do.

2) Help in the crusade so we do pull off a big win.

We have the technology. But it must be used. So let me ask, who is going to apply it? Let's face it, the answer to that question requires a lot of "me's" if we are to end the dwindling spiral of this civilization.

A Scientologist and auditor is not one who sits around in amazement at what he knows. He acts by using the technology to end the endless cycle of insanity and war, one by one. Everything we do is to make an actual session possible. Only the auditor can solve the source of aberration. That is why auditors are the most valuable beings on Earth. And it takes a lot of backup and administrative staff, in orgs, missions and the field to make it happen.

Yes, we are far bigger and more influential than in any previous year. And that size makes expansion easier. We have stable bases of operation in our Churches and social betterment activities, with even more on the way.

But as anyone can now see, we must move much faster and get much bigger. We must move well beyond the "make-break" point on a planetary basis. What is a make-break point? It is the point below which one struggles with internal demands necessary to survival and which prevents every staff member of every organization from looking outwards, and so dedicating his full attention and energies to accomplishing our aims. And the way to achieve that is to INCREASE OUR SIZE.

Today we do have many large organizations. But ALL of them must expand and be large. No org can "wait to do better" before they get big. The way to do better is to get big. An org with a few dozen staff will struggle. With 200, it will thrive and really expand. After all, it takes numbers to perform the full role of a Scientology Church. Lots of auditors. Lots of supervisors. Lots of people to lecture and provide introductory services. Lots of people to further disseminate in their communities. And the administrative staff to hat and train those staff, and keep the lines administered so they can provide Scientology services.

And beyond even that, it also requires we expand by establishing many more Churches, each one in turn composed of large numbers. 10,000 missions and 1,000 Class V orgs is not just a nice figure to postulate in the future. It must become a reality. But again, that requires every Scientologist doing their part. In other words, it requires YOU.

Perhaps in the past some haven't seen the urgency with which we must act. Perhaps it didn't seem real that the planet would not survive. Perhaps it seemed like we had a lot of time. Well, it's a lesson we all must learn at one time or another. The social veneer of this world only makes it appear that all is fine. But it just takes one event to bring the curtains down and expose the façade. All won't be well until we do our job. The magnitude of that job is summed up by a population of 6 billion people. Who is going to clear all of them? Obviously we need every hand we can get.

In recent years we have emerged from our own struggle for survival: more than 40 years of war with the IRS until we achieved full recognition for every Church and related organization nationwide; Interpol as the global purveyor of black propaganda, now distributing What Is Scientology? world over; and the foremost anti-religious hate group disbanded and now a distant memory. Factually, that was the tough fight, ensuring we would never lose the technology LRH worked a lifetime to provide.

But, we cannot let that work go in vain. If we fought so hard to secure it forever, then let's use it to win the Big Win.

Every one of our orgs and missions are open. None have been affected by this tragedy, except for the immediate help they now must provide to those whose lives have been shattered. And that they are doing: in New York, Washington and across the nation. The willingness and action of staff and Volunteer Ministers only further confirms what we already knew: Scientologists are the best people on Earth.

But, our responsibilities extend far beyond that immediate help we give. And it is an urgent mission. Of that, let there be no doubt.

What would you have thought if rescue workers in New York City stood to the side of the road waiting for other rescue workers to arrive at the scene? All while the wounded and trapped waited for help? Only to find out every rescue worker thought the other one was going to handle it? Well, we have a planet to salvage. And until we do, you are looking at entire populations stuck in the trap forever. The only way they can get out of the trap is by traveling The Bridge. And the only means to accomplishing that are hundreds of thousands of field auditors, tens of thousands of missions and thousands of orgs.

While the job may seem overwhelming, consider this: we were once just one man; today we are millions. In other words, we have the numbers to actually pull it off. It only requires enough of them to answer "yes" to a single question: Will you please help us?

LRH gave us the answers. Let's never forget the call he issued in the final sentence of Book One:

"For God's sake, get busy and build a better bridge!"

We can do it. We will do it.
